The Assisi Manifesto

Family therapy champions the family and affective connection as the main road of change in an age of pills, labels and social inequality. Our approach to helping families is revolutionary and often at odds with prevailing treatment modalities. The many outstanding speakers and the presence of 1000 delegates from all over the world at this conference, combined with our research, clinical experiences, and commitment to finding resources within the family will result in THE ASSISI MANIFESTO. A published declaration outlining our common principles of practice and evidence for those principles. An international faculty has been assembled for synthesizing and drawing up the document.
